Double Play Fails—Third baseman Johnny Jorgenson zooms safely into first base in second inning of today's Braves-Dodgers' game when the throw from Dick Culler to Earl Torgeson was late. Jorgenson forced Carl Furillo, Brooklyn centerfielder, but Braves failed to make it a double play. Dodgers went runless in this frame.

CONGRESSMEN AID CURLEY

Brookline Man Dies in Plane Crash

The Circulation of the Hearst Boston Papers Exceeds 600,000 Every Day in the Week---200,000 More Than Any Other New England Newspaper Combination

Solons Line Up Aid For Curley Pardon

Cut off from communication with the outside world except for an exchange of letters with his wife and children, 72-year-old Mayor James M. Curley shuffled around a hospital ward at the federal penal institution at Danbury, Ct., today, clad in prison uniform of khaki shirt and khaki pants.

Meanwhile, his final hope of freedom rested on a desk in the Department of Justice in Washington. It is a petition for executive clemency, just starting through government red tape that will finally send it to the White House for President Truman's decision.

Also in Washington, Congressmen were lining up support for an official visit to the White House by men who served in the House of Representatives with Curley to plead for his release from custody without delay.

Leading the fight is Rep. John W. McCormack of South Boston, a Democratic political power and former majority floor leader. He said, "I have done everything I could for my old and cherished friend. I hall continue to fight for him. The fight to free him is just getting under way."

Mrs. Mary Curley Donnelly on her return here from the capital said there were so many Congressmen enlisted in the drive to aid her father that she preferred not to name them for fear of forgetting some names and unintentionally slighting them.

First step in the government's handling of the petition for executive clemency is a study of the paper by the pardon attorney of the Department of Justice. He is Daniel Lyons, a long time Boston resident and former assistant district attorney of Suffolk County.

When the petition will reach President Truman was not known, but the Depar ment of Justice's silence on this point indicated it would receive no priority "speed up."

If this fina' move for freedom fails, the ma or is expected to serve out a full sentence of six months with six days off per month for good behavior. While no exact date has yet been computed, this would probably mean release in early December.

On his return to Boston, he is empowered to return to City Hall and reaume his mayoralty functions by act of the Legislature, and this news was reported to have cheered the mayor in his hospital confinement.

His health was reported unchanged since his arrival in Danbury by train from the capital following his dramatic courtroom appearance for a stay of a six to 18 months' sentence for mail fraud.

In his second full day at the "college jail" in rolling country three miles north of Danbury, he was reported again spending most of his time in bed, occasionally walking about the 30-bed ward and working on his first letter to his wife.

These letters, to his family, will be his only means of communicating with the outside world during his first 30 days of incarceration, a period of isolation during which he is tested mentally and physically and classified for prison work.

He will be allowed to mail out three letters each week. He can receive only seven and these from a list of persons he furnishes in advance. All other mail addressed to him—and this is expected to include a flood of sympathetic missives from well wishers—will be returned by his keepers.

After the month's isolation, Curley can spend one hour in visiting with his family each month. This can be divided into two periods of 30 minutes each or one full hours visit.

While his health remains precarious, the mayor is being treated as a patient nad receives daily injections of insulin for diabetes. Later, if he improves, he will be required to make his own bed and go after his own tray of food with the warning that he must eat everything he orders or be penalized.

Meanwhile, the city's temporary mayor, John B. Hynes, was in Chatham today, attending the week-end convention of the Massachusetts City Clerks Ass'n.

He said he will be back at City Hall Monday morning and within 24 hours will announce the city's tax rate for the year. His first day as chief executive was a busy round of activities, including his first public appearance at the VFW encampment.

Brookline Man, Canaan Pilot Killed

A Brookline textile manufacturer and an airport instructor were killed today in Canaan, Ct., when their plane crashed into a house at the end of a runway at the Canaan airport during a takeoff.

The victims were Herbert Ansin, 32, of Cleveland rd., Brookline, and Fayette Card, 32, Navy veteran and instructor at the Canaan airport.

Ansin, who owned three other planes which he used to travel the country on business, had taken off in the four-passenger ship from Norwood airport this forenoon.

Witnesses said the craft burst into flames, setting fire to the house in which Mrs. Marshall Stapleton and her three small children were having lunch. The Stapletons escaped injury, but their house was wrecked.

Ansin, well known in textile circles, married the former Evelyn Kleven of West Newton in Nashua, N. H., in 1936. He attended Massachusetts Institute of Technology before entering the textile business. His wife and two children, Gary, 9, and Linda, 4, survive.

Card was married three weeks ago to Mrs. Zoe Brundy of Sheffield.

8000 Germans Flee Soviet Zone

BRAUNSCHWIEG, Germany, June 28 (INS)—Eght thousand Germans were reliably reported today to have fled from the Soviet occupation zone into the British area within the last 24 hours.

The exodus of hungry, frightened Germans—some of them only 15 years old—has reached such proportions that border patrols are unable to cope with the situation.

Coal Miners Get $13.05 Pay Offer

By PHILLIPS J. PECK

WASHINGTON, June 28 (INS)—Four of the nation's leading coal and steel officials were reported today to have met with John L. Lewis and offered to grant the miners' full 1947 wage demands of $13.05 for an eight-hour portal-to-portal day.

This would be equivalent to a 35-cents-an-hour pay boost for the miners who today started a 10-day official vacation which ends July 8. A new contract must be negotiated by that date to avert a full-fledged summer coal strike.

Those said to have met secretly with the United Mine Workers president were Benjamin Fairless, president of U. S. Steel; Harry Moses, head of H. C. Frick Coal Co., U. S. Steel subsidiary; George M. Humphrey, chairman of the board of Pittsburgh Consolidation Coal Co., and Charles O'Neill, chief negotiator for Northern Appalachian operators.

Federal labor officials said there was only "a long shot chance" of completing a new coal wage agreement by July 8, but disclosure of the new wage offer greatly increased prospects of avoiding a long strike. A shutdown of 30 days would make upwards of one million workers idle.

Although the new offer meets Lewis' demands on wages and hours, there are other issues to be ironed out, including the length of the contract and a termination clause. Lewis wants protection from the new Taft-Hartley labor law. Union leaders, claiming it will be difficult to enforce union discipline under the statute, fear penalties for "wildcat" stoppages.

Under the new law, a union can oust a member only for nonpayment of dues.

The current anthracite contract provides the contract is effective as long as the miners are "willing and able to work" Lewis reportedly wants a similar clause in any new bituminous pact.

The four operators also reportedly offered to continue the present 5-cents-a-ton royalty on coal for the miners' welfare fund and accept the existing federal mine safety code with modifications.

The miners now earn $11.85 for a nine-hour portal day and Lewis demanded $13.05 for a day with one hour less work.

Patrolman Kearney Of Hyde Park Dead

The death of Patrolman John P. Kearney, 49, of Hyde Park ave., attached to the Hyde Park station, was announced by the police department today.

Kearney on the force 22 years, died last night of a heart ailment. He had been on sick leave a year. On the special service squad in Charlestown and at the Dudley st. station prior to 10 years at Hyde Park, he is survived by his wife, Mary and three sons, John, Henry and William.

WORK ON MORE AND DEADLIER GASES

WASHINGTON, June 28 (INS)—The unofficial Army and Navy bulletin reported today the chemical warfare service is experimenting on poisonous radioactive gases a thousand times more powerful than present types.

The gases bore into the tissues of the victim, cause sickness and ultimately death.

The work is being conducted at the chemical corps school, Edgewood Arsenal, Maryland. The process was explained as "impregnating known poison gases with gamma rays in an atomic furnace."

Lack of a method to protect the Army's own personal was reported to be a bottleneck in development of the gases for war. A thick wal lof concrete or lead is required to hold gamma rays.

Mrs. Cote May Do Work Outside Jail

Just six months to the day from the date her philandering husband was found dead in their Brockton apartment, Bertha Surprise Cote, 28, started a term as a "probationary student" at Sherborn reformatory today—with another co-incidence ahead for her.

Reformatory regulations permit inmates to accept daytime work in homes in the Framingham-Sherborn area after six months of their sentences have been served within prison walls.

This will permit the attractive widow to accept employment as a domestic during the holiday season next December—on the first anniversary of the bludgeon death of Rene Cote last Dec. 28.

Along with other inmates hired by housewives in accordance with long established rules, Bertha Cote will leave the reformatory at 8 a. m. and return at 7 p. m. She will be driven to and from the institution by her employer, who must pay wages of $2 daily.

The widow will be permitted to accept domestic employment up to three days out of every week, but must spend the other four days inside the reformatory.

Such a schedule would give Bertha six months of uninterruted confinement behind reformatory walls, followed by 22 months of part-time employment until her minimum sentence of 28 months is completed.

Dr. Miriam Van Waters, reformatory superintendent, reported today that Mrs. Cote has "adjusted herself very well" to her new surroundings. Like all patients, the superintendent said, she must spend the first 7 to 10 days in the hospital for routine examinations and innoculations.

Mrs. Cote then goes before a classification committee, comprised of doctors, psychologists, a head teacher and a social worker, and then will be assigned to her duties.

She may be assigned to the reformatory nursery, where 68 children of inmates are housed; to sewing workshops where chores include knitting, stitching, and flag making; or to farm work which includes dairy operation, management of livestock, and truck gardening. Dr. Van Waters said Mrs. Cote also could be enrolled in classes to learn nature studies, music, handcraft or domestic work.

MRS. BERTHA SURPRISE COTE
Asks For Hard Work in Jail

At the end of six months of investigation into the Cote case, the authorities today were still mystified over what transpired in the third-floor apartment in the early morning hours before police were summoned and found the body.

Bertha's latest, and fourth, account of the killing, given just before she left Plymouth courthouse to begin serving a three and a half to six-year term after pleading guilty to manslaughter, failed to convince Asst. Dist. Atty. John R. Wheatley, in charge of the prosecution.

She told of a battle with the 35-year-old Rene in which she picked up a marble support under the Christmas tree and hit him twice in self-defense.

Wheatley said in his opinion this version "is not the way she did it. I still don't understand how it was done. She did it all right and I don't think anyone else was involved, but I don't believe she has told the true story yet.

"She made the footprints, I also believe, either before or after the killing."

He also disclosed that Bertha would never have been jailed for six months in Plymouth or sent to the reformatory—if this was the true story and she had told it at the outset.

"If she had come in here the next morning and told us the story and if she had said he came at her and in the fight she hit him, she'd be walking the streets a free woman today."

Bertha's earlier accounts of what had happened included a story that one man killed Rene in an argument over an automobile purchase, that three men killed him and that Walter Steele, a Brockton youth, was the slayer.

Legislature Waits Action By Truman on Rent Bill

With the Legislature striving to wind up its 155th session tonight—but probably due to finish it Monday—Gov. Bradford today wired President Truman a plea to sign rent control legislation today so the General Court could be guided with regard to local measures.

Extension of the federal controls, it was pointed out, would obviate the need for local legislation. Bradford's telegram read:

"If you have made your decision to sign the rent control bill now before you, would it be possible to do it today? The Massachusetts State Legislature, now in its closing hours, is awaiting your final action, on which will depend whether or not it takes action of its own."

Bradford said later if he did not get an early reply he might send a special message to the Legislature late this afternoon.

The Senate accepted adverse reports on three rent control bills on voice vote and sent them to the House. Sen. Donald W. Nicholson of Wareham, president of the upper branch, said this action was not to kill the bills but to get them all together in the House because, if federal control legislation is not signed, the House must finance a state rent control agency.

The Senate engrossed, on voice vote without debate and sent to the House for enactment, a bill providing that the meals tax should not include alcoholic beverages.

Veterans' housing and the supplementary budget were, with rent control, the major issues to be disposed of, but the Boston school committee, in a last-minute move, asked the Governor to send the Legislature a special message guaranteeing Boston teachers their recently voted pay increases after the first of the year.

The increased pay bill previously passed for $400, $500 and $600 pay increases expires after the current calendar year and without the new legislation the salary tilts would be lost.

The supplementary budget is scheduled to be the last matter tackled before prorogation.

One of the House highlights today was a recommendation by the ways and means committee for a $25,000,000 bond issue to continue development of Logan International Airport, a sum $5,000,000 higher than sought by the State public works department.

Blind Deaf Mutes Wed by Touch

JOHNSON CITY, N. Y., June 28 (AP)—[illegible] life began today for Law[illegible] F. Moody, 46, of Binghamton, and the former Eva S. Hall, 42, of Cincinnati, O., both blind, deaf mutes. The wedding climaxed a 10-month courtship through letters in Braille.

The Rev. William Lang, commissioner of the deaf of the Central New York Episcopal Diocese, performed the ceremony. He communicated with the bride and groom by touching their hands, while the service was read aloud for the congregation.

Charles Burt, 98, Last G. A. R. Man in State, Dead

SPRINGFIELD, June 28 — Charles Benjamin Burt, 98, state commander of the Grand Army of the Republic and sole survivor of that organization in Massachusetts, died early today at his home in Wesson st., this city.

He enlisted at the age of 16 and served in the 8th Mass Regt., in Washington in 1862. After his discharge in 1864 he worked for several years at the Springfield Armory and was then appointed to the local fire department, from which he retired in 1917. He became commander of the Mass. Dept., GAR, in 1944

10 Bound, Robbed Of $175,000

ALLENTOWN, Pa., June 28 (AP)—Four gunmen held up five Allentown couples last night, bound and gagged them and escaped with approximately $175,000 in cash and valuables after cutting telephone wires.

Louis Weiner was on the front porch of his home shortly after 10 p. m. with his wife and three other couples, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Neff and Mr. and Mrs. Irvin Salitsky, when the four men mounted the porch, ordered the couples into the house and bound and gagged them.

When Weiner's daughter, Claire, and her escort returned home from a circus, they also were made prisoners. The holdup men then forced Weiner to open a safe from which they took $150,000 in non-negotiable securities, $1395 in cash and about $23,000 in jewelry.

Chandler's Fate As U. S. Traitor In Jury's Hands

The fate of Douglas Chandler, 58-year-old expatriate American newsman charged with treason against the United States, was given to a 12-man jury in the federal court here at 11.50 a. m. today, after an 85-minute charge to the jurors by Judge Francis J. W. Ford.

At 4 p. m. the jury had not reached a verdict.

"This man stands accused of a most heinous crime," the court informed the jury, and cautioned them they must satisfy themselves beyond a reasonable doubt on each of the 10 overt acts charged.

Judge Ford told them it was sufficient to find Chandler guilty of one overt act to convict him of treason. If the defendant was found guilty special written findings as to each overt act were to be returned. In the case of a not guilty finding, an oral verdict would suffice, the judge said.

A guilty finding could carry with it the death penalty, life imprisonment, or a minimum sentence of five years in prison and a $10,000 fine. Setting of the penalty rests with Judge Ford.

The court told the jury that if they found the defendant gave assistance to the German Government with treasonable intent and was capable at the time of realizing the difference between right and wrong, they could find him guilty.

It was also explained that Chandler was not charged with having levied war against the United States, but rather with having given aid and comfort to the enemy with his short-wave broadcasts of propaganda under the name of "Paul Revere."

Judge Ford said it was not necessary for the government to prove that the broadcasts had any effect on the people who heard them.

As to the witnesses who testified in the case, Judge Ford said, their credibility is to be decided by the jury.

Following his charge the judge called defense attorneys Edward C. Park and Claude B. Cross and Special Assistant U. S. Atty. Oscar R. Ewing into a conference at the bench, followed by the drawing of lots and dropping of two alternate jurors, Howard Deering, Malden and Charles Bailey, Lowell, who had listened with the other 12 to the three week trial.

The jurors then retired to the jury room and had lunch brought in before beginning deliberations.

Mrs. Ingalls Ill, 'Slave' Trial Halts

SAN DIEGO, Cal., June 28 (AP)—Mrs. Alfred Wesley Ingalls was reported on the verge of pneumonia today and the federal trial of the New England matron and her husband on a charge of enslaving Negro maid Dora Jones was in recess until Tuesday.

Mrs. Ingalls' sudden illness came after a day in court during which she was described as fearing Dora would kill her.

Judge Jacob Weinberger ordered a night session abandoned after a physcian appointed by him had visited the Ingalls home at Coronado and confirmed the report of their personal doctor that she had a nasal and bronchial infection.

Defense Atty. Clifford Fitzgerald said both doctors declared she might develop pneumonia unless allowed to rest.

Roxbury Gunman Robs Loan Shop

A holdup man who carried his gun in a paper bag staged a $59.50 robbery at Johnny's Loan Shop, Warren st., Roxbury, this afternoon.

Louis Olem, 26, of Michigan ave., Dorchester, the clerk, said the bandit posed as a prospective client, then whipped an automatic from the bag, forcing him to empty the cash register.

Olem also said the gunman demanded his wallet but told him to keep it when the clerk demonstrated there was no money in it.

VFW Here in Drive Against Red Paper

The 27th annual state encampment of the Veterans of Foreign Wars today attacked the Communist newspaper, The Daily Worker, as an instrument being used to accomplish the overthrow by force of the United States government, and urged legal steps be taken to enjoin its publication and distribution.

The encampment, at a crowded business session in the Irvington st. Armory, approved a resolve, unanimously recommended by the resolutions committee, providing that the VFW national department be authorized to start legal proceedings against the publication.

Addresses by Sen. Leverett Saltonstall and Gov. Bradford were scheduled highlights in today's agenda, following action on more than 100 proposals which were studied through the night by the resolutions committee.

Sen. Saltonstall, discussing the compulsory military training bill, told the delegates, "We must make it clear to the world that we always can back up our words with action if necessary."

"We must continue to be militarily strong at home as long as Europe remains in a delicate state of unbalance and unrest," he asserted.

Terming the universal training bill "one of the many important considerations of our overall national defense problems," Sen. Saltonstall predicted the Senate committee on armed services would "complete the groundwork" of a study on it before Congress recesses for the summer. A House committee is now holding hearings on the bill, he added.

"If the show of force is there, the need for using that force becomes much less," he declared. "Like the policeman on a busy street, the motorist instinctively obeys the law when he sees a cop in plain sight."

The former Bay State Governor said he favored unification of the armed forces, explaining the move was in no sense a merger, but rather a move that will give us "more security, more efficiency and more economy."

He warned against the encroachment of totalitarian pressures in the matter of giving aid to European countries.

"We canot spread our butter too thin throughout the world," he warned. "All requests for aid must be considered from a viewpoint of what is to our best advantage and what we can afford. We cannot hope to breathe new life into a faltering Europe if we ourselves are weak."

Rep. John F. Kennedy, also a featured speaker, told the delegates passage of the Taft-Ellender-Wagner bill for a 10-year program of federally financed housing represents the most important domestic fight for veterans.

The resolve on The Daily Worker, offered by the Waltham Post, charged that the newspaper's distribution was contrary to law because it was "written, circulated, printed, distributed, published and displayed to accomplish by force and violence the overthrow of the government."

The delegates at the afternoon session passed another resolution advocating the erection of a "suitable memorial" to the veterans of World War II be financed by the George Robert White Fund. The type of memorial was not specified in the resolve, a copy of which was ordered forwarded to Temporary Mayor John B. Hynes.

Delegates also went on record as favoring the adjusted service bill and increases in the ceilings of on-the-job training programs. The adjusted service bill would provide $3 a day to veterans of domestic service, and $4 a day to veterans of foreign service, with maximum payments limited at $3000 and $4000 respectively.

Today's session was opened with an invocation by John J. S. Fahey, USN, retired, county chaplain, and was presided over by State Com. James Reynolds.

While the business session was in progress, thousands of encampment visitors witnessed the annual bugle and drum corps competition at the Fens Stadium.

The Lt. Norman Prince Post of Boston, last year's national champions, won the state championship in the closed class, senior bugle and drum competition. The junior band contest was won by St. Joseph's CYO Band of Medford. Sponsored by the Norman Prince Post. The senior band competition was won by Malden Post, VFW, No. 639.

Big 3 Ban All News on Paris Parley

By JOSEPH E. DYNAN

PARIS, June 28 (AP)—A news blackout of a three-power foreign ministers' conference here, imposed by British request, kept the world in the dark today on whether Russia had defined further her attitude toward the Marshall plan for U. S. economic aid for Europe.

But a strong indication of the Soviet line was seen in a dispatch by Tass, official Russian news agency, which said the conference's "foremost task" was to "clarify the actual meaning" of U. S. State Sec. Marshall's statement outlining the plan.

Tass said the ministers could ask the U. S. about the "extent" and "conditions" of American help and the likelihood of its approval by Congress, but said this did not need to delay the work of the conference here.

British Foreign Sec. Bevin, French Foreign Minister Bidault and Soviet Foreign Minister Molotov scheduled their second session in the French Foreign Ministry's ornate Hall of Parrots for 4 p. m. (10 a. m. EST) today.

Cambridge Girl, 5, Vanishes From Bed

A chubby little Cambridge girl, Donna Mae Roxborough, of Sydney st., 5-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Roxborough, was the object of a widespread police search today.

This morning at 5:30, Donna Mae was sleeping when her mother got up to see that she was covered. Two hours later, when her parents and brother, Joseph, 10, arose, the little curly haired blonde girl had vanished, her pajamas hanging on a kitchen chair. Her skirt, tan blouse and brown playshoes were gone.

Mother, father, brother, and even the family pet, Pooch, vainly hunted through back yards and in neighbor's homes. Finally police were called in and the search spread to the beaches.

Quincy Woman's Death Probed

Police ordered an autopsy and an investigation today of the death of Mrs. Mary C. Connelly, 42-year-old Quincy Point waitress, followiing her death at Quincy City Hospital.

The woman, a resident of Cherry st., Quincy, was admitted to the hospital at 4 a. m., Thursday, suffering nosebleeds, bruises and internal injuries.

Hospital authorities said Mrs. Connelly was admitted by friends on the orders of a doctor whose name was not disclosed. The police probe was headed by Capt. George H. Fallon and Lt. Fred E. Young. Hospital attaches quoted the victim as saying she had injured herself in a fall.

Last 12 of Bay State's War Powers Revoked

Gov. Bradford today revoked the remaining 12 of the 100-odd executive wartime powers in effect since the beginning of World War II.

The powers revoked included authorizing the department of public utilities to issue temporary bus and taxi licenses for transportation of war workers, and authorization to furnish water and sewerage facilities to the federal government and to plants engaged in war work.

SOMERVILLE PLAYGROUNDS

The Somerville summer playground season will open Monday with activity slated on 21 parks. Baseball and track meets are carded for all areas, with Class A, B and C baseball leagues operating throughout the city.

Jessica Dragonette Bride In Card. Spellman's Chapel

NEW YORK, June 28 (INS)—Jessica Dragonette, opera, screen and radio soprano, was married today to Nicholas Meredith Turner, corporation attorney, in one of the rare ceremonies conducted by Francis Cardinal Spellman in his private chapel in the episcopal residence.

Cardinal Spellman celebrated the nuptial mass and read the marriage service in his chapel in the Gothic house in the rear of St. Patrick's cathedral.

Only the attendants — the bridesmaid was Miss Dragonette's sister—witnessed the ceremony. The Rt. Rev. Msgr. Walter P. Kellenberg, his secretary, assisted the Cardinal.

The bride and groom received holy communion, during the mass.

Following the mass, Cardinal Spellman sat down to breakfast with Mr. and Mrs. Turner, the attendants and Msgr. Kellenberg.

Mrs. Turner, widely known for her work during the war in behalf of fund drives and entertainment for soldiers and sailors, is one of New York city's leading Catholic women.

Roger de Palluel and Mrs. Anna Dragonette Loftus were the attendants.

The wedding came as a surprise to the many friends of the singing star. She had known Mr. Turner for about four years.

A spokesman said at her home: "Jessica was about to leave for the coast for a singing tour and I guess she and Mr. Turner decided suddenly."

Mrs. Turner is leaving by plane this afternoon to fill an engagement in the Hollywood Bowl. Turner will remain in New York for several days on business and then will rejoin his wife in Los Angeles for a honeymoon tour.

Jessica has been the star on various national radio programs following a successful career on the stage, and has appeared at many benefits.

She was awarded a medal by the Treasury Department last year for her work in behalf of the bond drives, and holds an award from Pope Pius for her work in behalf of Catholic endeavors.

Overell Girl's Love Diary Challenged

SANTA ANA, Cal., June 28 (INS)—Controversy flared today over the diary of Beulah Louise Overell, the heiress who, with her sweetheart, George R. Gollum, is on trial for the yacht murder of her parents, the Walter E. Overells.

Portions of the diary, containing a poignant account of the first days of the girl's romance with Gollum, were released by the defense as the prosecutor charged that sections indicating guilt were edited out of the diary. The defense was challenged to introduce the entire journal.

As the trial recessed until Monday, a search was stepped up for a man who telephoned a threat to R. R. Hodgkinson, Newport Beach police chief, a key figure in bringing Miss Overell and Gollum to trial. The hunted man is believed one who forced his way into the home of Mrs. Uvon Putnam, Juror No. 2, slugged her and fled after warning:

"That's not all you'll get if you find them guilty."

Probe Siegel's Friendship With Heiress

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., June 28 (AP)—Slain Benjamin (Bugsy) Siegel's friendship with Virginia Hill, the Alabama heiress in whose mansion he was slain, was studied more intently today by district atorney's investigators following a talk with Miss Hill's brother.

Charles Hill, 21, who was in the house when a gunman pumped at least four shots into the one-time public enemy, said Siegel had told him he wanted to marry his sister and "I'm certain Virginia was very much in love with him," Dep. Dist. Atty. Ernest Roll reported.

Asked if his sister, known as one of the film capital's most lavish party-givers, had obtained her money from thre former husbands' Hill was quoted by Roll as replying "they don't have that kind of money."

Miss Hill is in Paris at present.

Her brother, Roll added, said that was because she and Siegel had "split up."

"After she left," Roll quoted Hill, "Siegel came out to the house to close it up. He said he was going to take his two daughters (Millicent, 16, and Barbara, 14) to Vancouver for a vacation."

Authorities also questioned Mrs. Esther Siegel, who divorced the rackets boss and operator of the gaudy Flamingo Club at Las Vegas a year ago.

They reported she had little to say except "he was a good husband and father," and, as far as she knew, without an enemy.

Dist. Atty William E. Simpson said she disclaimed all knowledge of his underworld connections.

"I never heard of a single soul who didn't love him," she was quoted as saying. "I divorced him only because I was so lonesome. He was so seldom home."

New Features Mark Tribute

With new features being added daily, plans for observance Sunday, July 6, of the 200th anniversary of John Paul Jones, America's naval hero of Continental days, have reached a stage that promises to make it one of the gala days in the history of the city.

With planes overhead, open house from 1 p. m. to 5 p. m. at the Navy Yard in Charlestown, visiting day at the Navy drydock in South Boston and a score of other events, the program is being handled by officers of the Navy Dept.

Official tribute will be paid this country's Continental and Revolutionary hero aboard the historic frigate USS Constitution, tied up at the Charlestown yard.

Nearby will be other ships which have made naval history over the years and the newer craft which were completed too late to enter the recent hostilities of World War II but will be interesting as modern inventions designed for fighting ships.

Boston's part in the nationwide tribute will also include a series of band concerts by naval units

GI, Wife Hurt, Baby Dies In Manila Ambush

MANILA, June 28 (AP)—An unidentified band of armed men ambushed a United States Army jeep last night 45 road miles northwest of Manila and killed the four-weeks-old child of Medical Corps. Capt. Irvin Plough.

The ambush occurred on a heavily-traveled road near Minalin, Pampanga Province. Plough and his wife were wounded.

Lamphier-Blake

ONE OF THE LOVELIEST weddings of the season took place when Joan Blake, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry J. Blake of Wellesley Hills, became the bride of Dr. Timothy A. Lamphier, son of Mrs. Andrew J. Lamphier of Wellesley Hills and the late Mr. Lamphier.

Rt. Rev. Edward Murray, rector of St. John's Seminary, officiated at the nuptial mass in St. Paul's Church and Archbishop Cushing bestowed the Papal Benediction. Before the ceremony there was a half hour musical program by members of the Boston Symphony.

A wedding breakfast for 500 guests took place in the rose gardens at the Blake estate, Headacres. A pair of white swans gliding gracefully over the garden pond were a picturesque addition to the beautiful estate and there was dancing to the music of Harry Marshard's orchestra.

Given in marriage by her father, the petite dark haired bride wore a gown of ruffled white marquisette with a collar of rose point lace from her great-grandmother's wedding gown. She wore her mother's veil of Limerick lace attached to a rose point coronet and carried a prayer book with tiny nosegay of white orchids and lilies of the valley.

LORETTA SUMERS of Glenwood Springs, Colo. was maid of honor. The bridesmaids were Dorothy Mansfield, Wilmington, Del.; Emily Roeser, Fort Worth, Texas; Marie Williams and Jacqueline Hope, Waban; Mary Cronin and Constance Carens, Wellesley. They wore pale blue dotted swiss gowns and blue horsehair hats with ruffles of dotted swiss under the brims. They carried horsehair baskets filled with white daisies.

Mrs. Blake was gowned in ice blue crepe with a pink straw Watteau hat, blue gloves and slippers and a corsage of pale pink orchids. Mrs. Lamphier's gown was gray chiffon. Touches of lavender on her gray hat matched her corsage of lavender orchids.

Dr. Lamphier had his brother-in-law, Herbert Adams, as best man. The ushers were James Kelley, head usher; Dr. James A. Lamphier, Richard Lamphier, Gary and John Blake, brothers of the bride; Richard Grover, cousin of the bride; James Gaffney, John Grantley Taylor and Dr. James O'Leary.

The bride graduated from Dana Hall and Sarah Lawrence College this month. Dr. Lamphier is a Harvard '37 graduate and received his medical degree at B. U. in 1943. He is a resident surgeon at Boston City Hospital. The couple will reside in Brookline.

FOR HER MARRIAGE to Paul Jones Whipple at 4 o'clock in Harvard Congregational Church, Judith Tingley-Foor is wearing an ivory satin gown with heirloom rose point lace edging the front panel of the skirt and over the shoulders of the square cut bodice. Her fingertip veil falls from a coronet of rose point and she is carrying white orchids.

Rev. Ashley Day Leavitt is officiating and the reception is at the Brookline home of the bride's guardians, Miss Gertrude Tingley and Miss Mary Foor. The bride's cousin, James Alan Morrison, is giving her in marriage.

Cynthia Rugg of Boston, maid of honor, is wearing blue off-the-shoulder organdie that has a full skirt showing a petticoat of hamburg embroidery. She is carrying delphinium and yellow snapdragon. The bridesmaids in similar gowns of yellow organdie are Doris MacIntyre and Dorothy McCall, New York; Joan Danner, Waban; Lavinia Chase, Brookline; Mrs. Eduardo Estrada and Mrs. Sherman L. Whipple 3d, sister and sister-in-law of the groom.

Sherman Whipple 3d is best man for his brother and the ushers Alfred R. Meyer Jr., Russell T. Fry Jr., Spencer H. Brewster, Richard F. Withington, William P. Jones and Eduardo Estrada.

The couple will live in Plymouth after a Bermuda honeymoon.

Avoid Sun-Bathing Penalties

By RUTH MUGGLEBEE, Beauty and Fashion Editor

NOW GIRLS LITERALLY can be seen for miles around in their new swim togs . . . for something new and extraordinary has been added to the beach scene. It is a swim suit made of gantron . . . a luminous fabric . . . which is water-resistant and does not diminish in brilliance when immersed in water . . . and can be seen from way off in the distance.

The gantron fabric, created by Gantner of California originally as a wartime aid for identification purposes, possesses the amazing quality of being seen for distances up to two miles. The dramatically-styled two-piecer pictured . . . with its quaint Chinese slit trunks . . . is one of the group of these luminous swim suits which recently arrived in Boston. Smart in looks . . . it is comfortable both on sand and in the surf.

With the start of the sun-bathing season . . . a few precautionary tips from Hollywood beauties might not be amiss.

Blonde Myrna Dell of RKO Radio pictures protects her head with the following treatment. She parts the hair and applies a touch of ointment to the scalp only . . . repeating until the entire scalp is covered. Then she massages with her fingertips. Done carefully this does not disturb the wave. If she plans to be in the sun all day . . . Myrna ties a bright colored kerchief over her curls. Good insurance . . . and pretty, too.

To avoid what she calls "summer skin," lovely Jane Greer, another filmstress on the same movie lot, applies a heavy cream at night to her hands and arms as well as to her neck and face. This smooths the skin and allows for an even sun tan. Of course, she never subjects her fair complexion to direct sun rays without using a suntan oil of some kind. And she warns that one application is not enough. It should be repeated frequently.

Pretty Nan Leslie . . . whose latest film is appropriately titled "The Woman on the Beach" . . . has been burnt once but she learned her lesson well. Now in the big beach bag with her towel, oil, scarf, comb and sun glasses goes a lip pomade. Nan knows that lips burn and blister as easily as the back . . . and can be much more painful . . . so it's once over often with the pomade for her.

And a gal with her gams is film star Anne Jeffreys, who takes particular notice of protection for her legs when on the beach. They must be as smooth as her face and arms . . . so she gives them the same treatment . . . applying skin lotion to them regularly.

We don't think it necessary to impress on anyone the importance of acquiring a tan gradually . . . taking a little sun at a time . . . until the skin is conditioned to it.

BLOOMER GIRL of the 1947 vintage is CBS Actress Virginia Jackson, shown at right, in her demure green and white checked cotton seersucker Catalina bathing suit . . . its romper fullness gathered into a lastex-shirred midriff. Straps on the modern bloomer girl are purely optional . . . for an elasticized base at the ruffled edge insures secure anchorage.

SWIMSUIT made of a luminous fabric . . . which its creator, Gantner of California, modestly claims may be seen a mile away . . . is the last word in beach swimwear. A two-piecer combine of halter-bras and shorts . . . it is effectively modeled by Starlet Barbara Bates . . . who matches the fabric in high-visibility quality.

NEW IDEA playsuit is this classical but versatile version which affords complete freedom for action and comfort. Designed with a one-piece back . . . it has a blouse with a shirt-tail front that tucks into the waistband of the shorts. And if the matching skirt is buttoned on . . . the result is a side-line two-piecer.

Salads Become Hearty Main Course Dishes on Summer Menus

By MARTHA LEE, Household Editor

SALADS COME TO THE FORE THIS MONTH. The little salad that is part of luncheon and dinner menus all year, grow to man-size, hearty main course salads. Fish salads, meat salads, and vegetable salads—or combinations of them—start to appear on our tables, and it's hard to find anything tastier on hot summer days.

Salad meals are a bit different from our usual ones, and we need extra special tidbits to round out the meal. Hot breads are a perfect answer. They add the right balance to salad meals, which are not, as a rule, starchy. And today hot breads are so simply and quickly made with the aid of ready-mixes, that it is only a matter of seconds from the package to the oven.

An ideal plan for summer salad meals is to make the salad ahead of time and store in the refrigerator. A half hour or so before mealtime, prepare the muffins and pop them in the oven. While they are baking, the table can be set, the coffee made, the dessert prepared and set aside for serving later.

CHICKEN SALAD

2 cups cooked chicken
Salt and pepper
1 cup diced celery
⅓ cup French dressing
½ cup mayonnaise

The chicken should be free from skin, fat, and gristle, and should be cut in cubes ½ to ¾ inch in size. For special occasions white meat alone is used. Sprinkle meat with salt and pepper, add celery and French dressing, and let chill half an hour or more. Serve on platter in lettuce cups and garnish with mayonnaise. Makes 6 servings.

Note: Cooked veal or pork may be substituted for chicken in part or entirely. The salad may be garnished with sliced hard-cooked eggs and capers.

PLAIN HOT MUFFINS

Empty a package of muffin mix into a bowl and add 1¼ cups (10 fluid ounces) of cool water, folding in slowly. Do not beat. Batter should be slightly lumpy. Fill greased muffin tins ⅔ to 2-3 full. Bake in moderate oven (375 deg. F.) 25 to 30 minutes, or until evenly browned. Serve piping hot. A package makes 12 large muffins or 20 small muffins. For half quantity, spoon level into standard measuring cup (do not pack down) scant 1 2-3 cups mix; add scant 5 oz. of water

SALMON SALAD

2 cups cooked or canned salmon
1 cucumber sliced, or 1 cup diced celery
¼ cup mayonnaise
Lettuce
¼ cup minced ripe olives

Chill salmon, remove bones, and flake. Place salmon in center of salad platter. Crisp cucumber in salted water half an hour and drain thoroughly. Mix cucumber or celery with mayonnaise and arrange in lettuce cups around salmon. Sprinkle with minced ripe olives. Makes 6 servings.

LUNCHEON SALAD

1 No. 2 can peas
1 cup cubed American cheese
½ cup diced celery
¼ cup chopped sweet pickle
1 tbsp. chopped pimiento
Salt and pepper
2 tbsp. French dressing
2 tbsp. mayonnaise

Drain the peas (save the liquid for soups or sauces), combine with cheese, celery, pickle and pimiento. Add the salt and pepper to suit taste. Mix with the French dressing and chill for an hour. Drain, combine with the mayonnaise and serve on salad greens. Makes 8 servings. Place a slice of tomato and a canned prune on top each serving of salad.

Lonesome Widow Writes

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX: I have been a widow for five years and I am 38 years old. I would like to meet a nice man.

"LONESOME WIDOW."

Dear "Lonesome Widow": If you have been reading my column through the last few weeks, you may remember that to others who have written me letters similar to your own, I have said that I do not promote correspondence between my men and women readers. It seems to me, I have said many times before, that there are far better ways to make new friends than by "picking them up" through the mails.

I realize that the opportunities for meeting new people, when you live in a none-too-large place, are small. But sometimes it is possible to move to a town where there are more chances to increase your circle of acquaintances. You don't say whether or not you have children, or have any reason for staying in the town you now live in. But, if you are completely free, I would certainly consider a move to a larger city. You are young enough to find some sort of work that might bring you in contact with congenial people, and in a bigger place you will find clubs and other organizations you can join for social companionship.

I suggest that you think this over and see if it might not be possible for you to change your place of living and start out on a new life.

TRUMAN VETO MOTIVE CLEAR

THE INJUDICIOUS LANGUAGE used in the veto message on the Labor Bill was a repudiation of President Truman's pledge in his Armistice Day press conference to co-operate with the new 80th Congress, in which the Republicans have a majority.

The Hearst newspapers, in commenting immediately after the event on Mr. Truman's seeming holding out of the olive branch, pointed out that the President's statement contained a serious default.

"There is a material omission," these newspapers declared, "in Mr. Truman's effort to take cognizance of the election six days after the event.

"NOWHERE DOES THE PRESIDENT SAY OR EVEN INTIMATE THAT THE ELECTORATE BY A DECISIVE MAJORITY HAS GIVEN A MANDATE FOR A FUNDAMENTAL CHANGE."

In the same editorial the point was made that President Truman had seriously raised doubt as to what his attitude would be on cuts in federal expenditures, tax reduction and revision of the federal labor laws.

There is no longer any doubt.

In the months that have passed since November, 1946, Mr. Truman has made it clear that he intends to defy the electorate and their new representatives in Congress and instead try to freeze errors, excesses and inequities of the New Deal.

Mr. Truman's decision to use the presidential veto power to block remedial legislation intended to promote economic reconstruction and national progress is now a matter of record.

His stubborn effort to turn back the hands on the clock of legislative adjustment to changing conditions is all the more objectionable in view of the demonstrated desire of the 80th Congress to ignore narrow partisan considerations and play ball with the President, especially on matters relating to the foreign affairs of the United States.

IT IS NOW clear that the division between Congress and the White House means that Mr. Truman is determined to frustrate the corrective legislative program for which the people voted last November.

In the circumstances, it appears that the President has been more impressed with pressure group tactics by special interests than with the voice of the people as expresssed at the ballot box.

Mr. Truman's adamant attitude has again shown realistic power is possessed by neither of the two major parties, but is back in the hands of the coalition between Jeffersonian Democrats and Republicans, which in the overriding of the veto on the Taft-Hartley Bill demonstrated anew that it has the power to enact laws irrespective of Mr. Truman's expressed views.

In the election of November, 1948, the voters will have an opportunity to restore responsible party government responsive to the expressed views of the people.

The New Dealers have developed their own peculiar brand of inflexible orthodoxy.

The effect of such an attitude, where not overridden by the bipartisan coalition in Congress, is to delay the timing of postwar economic recovery.

The voters will know where the blame lies for failure to act swiftly and forehandedly to bring legislation into harmony with the present and prospective needs and desires of the American people.

GRAVE INJUSTICE

THE Federal Government has revealed that almost half a million veterans of the last war are still too young to vote.

They were old enough to risk their lives to fight the battles of democracy, but in the opinion of most State Legislatures, they are not old enough to participate in that same democracy.

For more than two years citizens of nineteen and twenty years of age have been voting with acknowledged intelligence in all elections in the State of Georgia.

Will any person say that our Massachusetts sons and daughters of these ages are less mature and consequently less qualified for the privilege of casting ballots?

Through the world we two will go,
Our faces set to every foe,
With love before us as a sign,
Thy hand in mine, thy hand in mine.
My heart in thine, my heart in thine,
Through life, through happy death the same,
We two will kneel before the shrine,
And keep alight the sacred flame,
My heart in thine, my heart in thine.

—MARY COLERIDGE.

MINNIE ASHLEY sang "Rhoda Ran A Pagoda" in "San Toy." You can bet all the stogies in Wheeling on that. My authority is Flora Zabelle (Mrs. Raymond Hitchcock). Flora knows because she was in the chorus of "San Toy" when Minnie sang the ditty. When Minnie left the cast Flora took her place as the star.

PASSING BY — George Zaharias. Erstwhile wrestler. The very proud matrimonial mate of the great "Babe" Didrikson. George is quite a mass of manhood. He weighs 350 pounds. During his career as a wrestler, he was known as "The Crying Greek From Cripple Creek" . . . Joan Crawford. Slightly dynamic actress. Is running neck and neck with the brook in the going-on-forever handicap. This time next year Joan will have been a film star for 20 years.

STEAK—In Flushing, Long Island, recently, porterhouse steak was selling for 62 cents a pound. A few miles away in Forest Hills the price for porterhouse was $1.15 a pound. At the same time in midtown Manhattan porterhouse was selling for 83 cents a pound on Third ave., and $1.25 a pound on Fifth ave. This certainly proves how right that man was who said: "Before you buy try three places."

ASKING—Queries from Clients. Q. I am a 21-year-old girl and do not drink, smoke or neck—but still have a grand time. What do you think of that? A. Drinking and smoking are not necessary in the pursuit of happiness. A young woman who passes these habits up is probably better off. But occasionally indulging in a little kiss is not a bad habit. It is only doing what comes naturally. Q. What's the best way to handle a Taurus (April 21-May 20) wife? A. A Taurus wife doesn't want the honeymoon ever to be over, not even for five minutes. She needs plenty of loving. Her spouse must say "I love you" to her a minimum of 12 times a day. Taurus women are fond of good food and plenty of it. Their figures suffer accordingly. However, a husband should not be concerned as to how his Taurus wife looks in a bathing suit and suggest a diet. A Taurus woman on a diet becomes irritable, hard to get along with. So say stargazers.

SAYS HE—"Why do you concede that bartenders should be tipped?" asks a Pittsburgher. "Are you afraid you will be slipped a Mickey Finn if you don't? Waiters, bell boys, hotel maids, etc., receive low salaries which are expected to be augmented by tips. But bartenders are paid excellent salaries, especially in New York City, and there is no justice in their seeking tips. It is just a form of panhandling."

MULES & MEN—The best type of wife a man can have is a sympathetic girl with a sense of humor. On this, all the great Horses & Women experts of the past and present are agreed. It is evidently a combination of characteristics which strongly appeals to the male of the species. This is called to the attention of a young woman of Detroit who says that though considered a good looker she cannot make the progress she wants to with personable young men. Her communication indicates she has a sense of humor. Now all she has to do is to develop a sympathetic attitude and her luck with the lads will change. Such is the advice of our Mules & Men experts.

SIDELIGHTS—Now I have readers in Cockeysville, Md., Sappho, Wash. and Cocoa, Fla. I heard from them all in the same mail. I certainly am doing all right for a poor boy from Brooklyn . . . Have given the cigar-holder what I consider a fair trial. It has some advantages. But I find that using it causes one cigar to taste much like another. With a holder you don't get the enjoyment from a fine cigar that you should.

CAREER GIRL—A New Yorker who says she is a blue-eyed blonde, aged 21, further states she earns as an office manager a salary of $300 a month. She asks: "Why should I marry some low salaried man and fight with him side by side up the ladder? How could I respect a man who earned less than I did? Why should I not wait for a man who at least earns as much in a week as I do in a month?"

"Gee, I don't know WHAT I'd do without my morning coffee!"

THESE DAYS

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

(Copyright, 1947, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT made "Freedom From Fear" one of the four cornerstones of his philosophy. And the greatest fear of all is war, for in war our children are imperiled.

George E. Sokolsky

The misery of our generation is that we have fought two unfinished wars. World War II is still unfinished. Not even paper treaties have been arranged among the principal combatants. We still live in the shadow of a war to the death.

Politicians dislike such language. They prefer to live in that happy hunting ground of loose, optimistic concepts. They prefer to point to their masterly achievements even if the record unfolds little but faulty judgment, reckless improvisations, slogans rather than thought, and lies that were hurled over the airwaves with the appearance of sincerity and profound truth. So, we were fooled and tricked and the war continues.

Allies become enemies; foes become the coddled darlings of policy. As Richard Law says: " . . . In the stress of war we nourish the illusion that a better world is being born of suffering and sacrifice. But total war does not bring a better world. Total war brings total ruin. The devastation, physical, economic and, above all, moral, which was wrought by the war is without parallel in modern history, and it will not easily be made good."

THAT WAS WORLD WAR II with Russia as an ally. What World War III with Russia the enemy can be baffles imagination. Surely, no one in the United States craves such a war nor do sensible people agitate for it. Yet, that war is in the making and Soviet Russia is the maker, perhaps witlessly. Such a war would mean ruin for them as it would mean ruin for us and for all mankind. It would probably set the human race back a thousand years. Yet it seems to be inevitable.

But is anything inevitable? The Hegelians and Marxists suffer from the superstition of inevitability. They have reverted to the fatalism of the fore-ordained. Forces, once let loose, they assume, must meet at an inevitable point. And for them the inevitable point is where Socialism triumphs over Capitalism; where the Marxian concept of Democracy conquers the Jeffersonian concept of Democracy; where the elite, the expert, the scientist and statistician overcomes the inexpert voice of the people.

Those who believe in the inevitable cannot risk much for peace, for what will be, will be. This hopeless Nihilism of the human spirit explains nearly everything that has happened in Europe during the past two years. Why stand up for principle? Why cleave to a way of life? Why hold on to faith and tradition? The end must come.

At a moment like this, most people are reduced to clods. Hunger, persecution, fear, break down the will to hold ideals high. Hungry men fight for bread alone. Starving mothers think of starving children. The faith of a people can be stamped out for generations by the brutality of government and the assurance that hopelessness is the only goal in life.

TO AMERICANS, all this is hard to understand; yet unless we do grasp what has happened to the minds and spirits of millions of Europeans, it is impossible for us even to approximate the trends in their conduct. Why do France and Italy march so swiftly into a barbarous world? Why has even Great Britain, the mother of free institutions, taken on the characteristics of a Socialist state? Why does Christianity seem to have no power of resistance to the great darkness that is enveloping Europe?

The answer is hunger, fear and hopelessness. The answer is that men have lost the reason for striving. That is what the "unnecessary war," as Winston Churchill has so aptly christened it, has done to the civilization of Europe. A continent is committing suicide because it has become as accustomed to death as to life, because fear has replaced hope, and ideals of living have given way to the shabby business of begging for bread.

It is in this atmosphere that a new war is gestating. Day by day, it comes closer. Only forthright speaking can save us. Polite compromises mean nothing now. Hasty retreats will not help. We face grave danger. Only fools dare avoid caution.

Hollywood

By Louella O. Parsons

HOLLYWOOD, June 28—If Elyse Knox was shedding a tear or two because Mike Todd called off his movie production of "Linda Be Good," in which she was to star—she can turn on the smiles now. Mike has sold this musical to Matty Kemp for a PRC picture, but along with the deal, Todd insisted Elyse remain in the top role.

Elyse Knox

"That's mighty good-hearted," you're probably saying—and it is. But there's more to Mike's generosity than meets the eye. He has Elyse in mind for a Broadway musical this fall—and the more she is built up on the screen, the more she will be worth to his show.

"Linda Be Good" is the best chance she's had to click in a musical, although, I must add, this is not the same show in which Todd will star her in New York.

FRANCES GIFFORD, one of our prettiest girls, will sing and play the piano in "Luxury Liner," Joe Pasternak's musical, which starts in three weeks.

"It's Frances' best role to date," Joe told me, "and she is reporting for wardrobe fittings immediately."

With Frances is Jane Powell, MGM's cute little thrush, and Lauritz Melchior who can make you forget your troubles whenever he sings. I personally am glad Frances gets this chance, which she deserves. She is not only awfully pretty, but awfully, awfully nice.

CLAUDE RAINS goes to Paris with Viveca Lindfors and Dennis Morgan for "To the Victor." Warners, along with many of the other companies, think it is a very good thing now for our relationship with Europe to make a certain number of pictures abroad.

This one will be made right in Paris. The last picture Claude made abroad was "Caesar and Cleopatra," with Vivien Leigh. He received over a million dollars for that movie because it included his income tax in England. He had to pay tax in both America and England. I wonder how that tax situation will work out with a picture made by an American company?

CHARLIE EINFELD went into raves over Hazel Brooks (Mrs. Cedric Gibbons) after he looked at "Body and Soul."

"She's certainly our next big star," he said, "and I am so pleased with what she's done that I'm starring her in 'Cairo Incident.' I'd like to borrow Richard Conte from Darryl Zanuck to play opposite her."

While we were talking Charlie mentioned that he and May (Mrs. Einfeld) had just celebrated their 20th wedding anniversary. He sent May a bridal bouquet with a note saying: "Dear Miss Band: I have been looking for you since 1927 to return this bouquet which you left in a suite at the St. Regis." Needless to say, that's where the Einfelds spent their honeymoon.

CHIT-CHAT: James Thurber, the author, is a man of conviction and moreover, of sincerity. He has always refused to write for the movies, but finally consented to write a treatment of "The Catbird Seat" for Sam Goldwyn.

Thurber was getting a salary of $3500 a week for about eight weeks, from Goldwyn, during which time he turned out an 80-page treatment. But when changes were ordered that would make the Thurber story better for movies, Thurber called the whole thing off and refunded every cent that had been paid him. Even his agent, who handled his deal, had to return his commission. That's what I call a really honest man.

When Columbia found Janet Blair she was a vocalist with Hal Kemp's band, and it was her singing and dancing ability that first attracted Harry Cohn.

Janet Blair

But Janet has done a lot of other things since she was first signed. For instance, she has just finished a whodunit in "I Love Trouble," with Franchot Tone. But now she's going back to singing and dancing again in "Let's Fall in Love," which Irving Starr will produce as his first Columbia assignment.

Give a comedian a chance to be his own boss and 10 to 1 he will go "straight." For his second independent venture, Eddie Bracken has bought "Hambletonian," a harness racing thriller by Morton Jurow.

In it Eddie neither sings, dances nor makes with the jokes! Instead, he'll be there in all his technicolor glory playing the hero-lover. Well, he should enjoy his fling into drama, for most of the picture will be shot at the actual track near New York.

SNAPSHOTS OF HOLLYWOOD collected at random: Juan Romero, who owns the house where Bugsy Siegel was killed, was out dancing with Anne Jeffreys. He said: "Imagine my coming home from Europe to find all that had happened in my house!"

Well, Ricki Soma, the girl on the magazine cover, doesn't get to play Olga in "Miracle of the Bells." After seeing her second test, Jesse Lasky voted against it.

Phil Baker's youngsters will join him for the summer, beginning July 1. He's looking up all the amusement park and places where kids like to go.

Attention those who say movie marriages never last. Sir Aubrey Smith had a jeweler make an exact facsimile of the engagement ring he gave his wife in 1895. The old ring has been worn down so that she couldn't wear it anymore.

Saw Bonita Granville and her bridegroom, Jack Wrather, at a table for two at the Mocambo. Wrather has invested $50,000 in a television station in Dallas, his home town.

Dennis O'Keefe thinks his house is jinxed. Last year Howard Hughes' plane crashed 100 yards away, and now the Bugsy Siegel murder occurred two houses away.

Mrs. N. Peter Rathvon and her two daughters are leaving on a two-month trip—first, to Acapulco, and then Yucatan. They will be joined later by Mr. Rathvon, who will return here with them late in August.

Roland Culver, Paramount actor, had a knee operation Thursday. His knee was infected as result of an old injury.

Mrs. Edward G. Robinson is introducing Miss Lolita Castegnaro, composer and stylist, whom she discovered in South America, at a large carnival party July 12.

Michael O'Shea and Virginia Mayo, heads together, having an ice cream soda. When are these two getting married?

Checking on Henry

WASHINGTON, June 28 (INS)—If the high monkey-monks of the two major political parties would only trust one another once in a while, the cost of politics would come cheaper in this country.

Right now, for instance, they could avoid endless duplication of effort in their parallel projects of retracing the recent speaking tour steps of one Henry Agard Wallace.

Unfortunately, however, they refuse to put mutual faith into a bi-partisan enterprise of that nature—possibly because they know one another too well—so "Operation Wallace" continues to move along its two-pronged political pathway.

As has been oft-mentioned before, their main interest in the corn-belt orator is slightly mutual, in a somewhat contradictory sort of a way. It concerns his threat to start a third party in '48.

The Democrats are afraid he will. The Republicans are afraid he won't. And both sides would like to know what would happen if he did. They think a closer look at some of his sponsorship and audiences across the country might give them a hint.

Curiously, neither side paid much attention until the Wallace wanderings were almost over, temporarily of course.

When Henry was hopping all over Europe, popping off about the Truman doctrine, Republicans and Democrats alike just laughed and laughed. Home front reaction indicated he was cutting his own political throat —eliminating himself from the '48 competition.

EVEN WHEN HE CAME home and continued lecturing before capacity crowds, there was no noticeable fear or anticipatory trembling in high party councils. It was assumed he was being promoted and listened to by the left-wing radical fringe, and his tour was written off as unimportant.

But suddenly the hired hands on "New Republic"—the magazine of which Wallace is the absentee editor—came out with a score card, and the boys suffered quite a shock.

Roughly, it read like this:

In a few weeks' time, Wallace made more than 30 speeches in some 15 states. Capacity crowds of about a quarter of a million people paid more than $300,000 in admissions, and contributed unreported thousands more, to hear him speak. In addition, uncounted millions heard him in various coast-to-coast radio hookups.

Even more pertinent, from the politicians' point of view, was the hint that neither his sponsorship nor his audiences always consisted solely of recognized left-wing or radical groups. In fact, hurriedly-organized audience polls, taken during the latter phase of his eastern swing, seemed to prove conclusively that thousands of his listeners could hardly be classed as tentative liberals.

CHECKING the sponsorship was the first and simplest project. Old-time political workers carry endless mental files of the men and women usually found in the background of organized movements—either conservative or liberal. Hence it was comparatively easy to gumshoe around the sponsoring organizations for the sight of old familiar faces.

Usually they found some, and subsequently tagged the sponsoring group with the label of its leader's previously-known leanings—largely extreme left-wing. But it was not always easy. Some student groups sponsored Wallace speeches, for instance.

The audience probe is proving equally confusing. Once the identity of many known conservatives was established in the crowds which heard Henry, the big question was why they came—whether they actually were potential converts, or merely were magnetized by that curiosity which attracts all manner of humans to watch fires, freaks and flagpole sitters . . .

If the bosses of both parties knew that answer, they'd know more about Wallace's worth in '48—and they could call their ward-hounds off Henry's now cold, 28,000-mile trail.

But the hunt still would have been cheaper with one pack!

TRUMAN VETO MOTIVE CLEAR

THE INJUDICIOUS LANGUAGE used in the veto message on the Labor Bill was a repudiation of President Truman's pledge in his Armistice Day press conference to co-oprate with the new 80th Congress, in which the Republicans have a majority.

The Hearst newspapers, in commenting immediately after the event on Mr. Truman's seeming holding out of the olive branch, pointed out that the President's statement contained a serious default.

"Tere is a material omission," these newspapers declared, "in Mr. Truman's effort to take cognizance of the election six days after the event.

"NOWHERE DOES THE PRESIDENT SAYOR EVEN INTIMATE THAT THE ELITORATE BY A DECISIVE MAJORITY HAS GIVEN A MANDATE FOR A FNDAMENTAL CHANGE."

In the same editorial the point was made that President Truman had seriously raised doubt as to what his attitude would be on cuts in federal expenditures, tax reduction and revision of the federal labor laws.

There is no longer any doubt.

In the months that have passed since November, 1946, Mr. Truman has made it clear that he intends to defy the electorate and their new representatives in Congress and instead try to freeze errors, excesses and inquities of the New Deal.

Mr. Truman's decision to use the presidential veto power to block remedial legislation intended to promote economic reconstruction and national progress is now a matter of record.

His stubborn effort to turn back the hands on the clock of legislative adjustment to changing conditions is all the more objectionable in view of the demonstrated desire of the 80th Congress to ignore narrow partisan considerations and play ball with the President, especially on matters relating to the foreign affairs of the United States.

IT IS NOW clear that the division between Congress and the White House means that Mr. Truman is determined to frustrate the corrective legislative program for which the people voted last November.

In the circumstances, it appears that the President has been more impressed with pressure group tactics by special interests than with the voice of the people as expressed at the ballot box.

Mr. Truman's adamant attitude has again shown realistic power is possessed by neither of the two major parties, but is back in the hands of the coalition between Jeffersonian Democrats and Republicans, which in the overriding of the veto on the Taft-Hartley Bill demonstrated anew that it has the power to enact laws irrespective of Mr. Truman's expressed views.

In the election of November, 1948, the voters will have an opportunity to restore responsible party government responsive to the expressed views of the people.

The New Dealers have developed their own peculiar brand of inflexible orthodoxy.

The effect of such an attitude, where not overridden by the bipartisan coalition in Congress, is to delay the timing of postwar economic recovery.

The voters will know where the blame lies for failure to act swiftly and forehandedly to bring legislation into harmony with the present and prospective needs and desires of the American people.

GRAVE INJUSTICE

THE Federal Government has revealed that almost half a million veterans of the last war are still too young to vote.

They were old enough to risk their lives to fight the battles of democracy, but in the opinion of most State Legislatures, they are not old enough to participate in that same democracy.

For more than two years citizens of nineteen and twenty years of age have been voting with acknowledged intelligence in all elections in the State of Georgia.

Will any person say that our Massachusetts sons and daughters of these ages are less mature and consequently less qualified for the privilege of casting ballots?

Through the world we two will go,
Our faces set to every foe,
With love before us as a sign,
Thy hand in mine, thy hand in mine.
My heart in thine, my heart in thine,
Through life, through happy death the same,
We two will kneel before the shrine,
And keep alight the sacred flame,
My heart in thine, my heart in thine.

—MARY COLERIDGE.

MINNIE ASHLEY sang "Rhoda Ran A Pagoda" in "San Toy." You can bet all the stogies in Wheeling on that. My authority is Flora Zabelle (Mrs. Raymond Hitchcock). Flora knows because she was in the chorus of "San Toy" when Minnie sang the ditty. When Minnie left the cast Flora took her place as the star.

PASSING BY — George Zaharias. Erstwhile wrestler. The very proud matrimonial mate of the great "Babe" Didrikson. George is quite a mass of manhood. He weighs 350 pounds. During his career as a wrestler, he was known as "The Crying Greek From Cripple Creek" . . . Joan Crawford. Slightly dynamic actress. Is running neck and neck with the brook in the going-on-forever handicap. This time next year Joan will have been a film star for 20 years.

STEAK—In Flushing, Long Island, recently, porterhouse steak was selling for 62 cents a pound. A few miles away in Forest Hills the price for porterhouse was $1.15 a pound. At the same time in midtown Manhattan porterhouse was selling for 83 cents a pound on Third ave., and $1.25 a pound on Fifth ave. This certainly proves how right that man was who said: "Before you buy try three places."

ASKING—Queries from Clients. Q. I am a 21-year-old girl and do not drink, smoke or neck—but still have a grand time. What do you think of that? A. Drinking and smoking are not necessary in the pursuit of happiness. A young woman who passes these habits up is probably better off. But occasionally indulging in a little kiss is not a bad habit. It is only doing what comes naturally. Q. What's the best way to handle a Taurus (April 21-May 20) wife? A. A Taurus wife doesn't want the honeymoon ever to be over, not even for five minutes. She needs plenty of loving. Her spouse must say "I love you" to her a minimum of 12 times a day. Taurus women are fond of good food and plenty of it. Their figures suffer accordingly. However, a husband should not be concerned as to how his Taurus wife looks in a bathing suit and suggest a diet. A Taurus woman on a diet becomes irritable, hard to get along with. So say stargazers.

SAYS HE—"Why do you concede that bartenders should be tipped?" asks a Pittsburgher. "Are you afraid you will be slipped a Mickey Finn if you don't? Waiters, bell boys, hotel maids, etc., receive low salaries which are expected to be augmented by tips. But bartenders are paid excellent salaries, especially in New York City, and there is no justice in their seeking tips. It is just a form of panhandling."

MULES & MEN—The best type of wife a man can have is a sympathetic girl with a sense of humor. On this, all the great Horses & Women experts of the past and present are agreed. It is evidently a combination of characteristics which strongly appeals to the male of the species. This is called to the attention of a young woman of Detroit who says that though considered a good looker she cannot make the progress she wants to with personable young men. Her communication indicates she has a sense of humor. Now all she has to do is to develop a sympathetic attitude and her luck with the lads will change. Such is the advice of our Mules & Men experts.

SIDELIGHTS—Now I have readers in Cockeysville, Md., Sappho, Wash. and Cocoa, Fla. I heard from them all in the same mail. I certainly am doing all right for a poor boy from Brooklyn . . . Have given the cigar-holder what I consider a fair trial. It has some advantages. But I find that using it causes one cigar to taste much like another. With a holder you don't get the enjoyment from a fine cigar that you should.

CAREER GIRL—A New Yorker who says she is a blue-eyed blonde, aged 21, further states she earns as an office manager a salary of $300 a month. She asks: "Why should I marry some low salaried man and fight with him side by side up the ladder? How could I respect a man who earned less than I did? Why should I not wait for a man who at least earns as much in a week as I do in a month?"

"Gee, I don't know WHAT I'd do without my morning coffee!"

THESE DAYS

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

(Copyright, 1947, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT made "Freedom From Fear" one of the four cornerstones of his philosophy. And the greatest fear of all is war, for in war our children are imperiled.

George E. Sokolsky

The misery of our generation is that we have fought two unfinished wars. World War II is still unfinished. Not even paper treaties have been arranged among the principal combatants. We still live in the shadow of a war to the death.

Politicians dislike such language. They prefer to live in that happy hunting ground of loose, optimistic concepts. They prefer to point to their masterly achievements even if the record unfolds little but faulty judgment, reckless improvisations, slogans rather than thought, and lies that were hurled over the airwaves with the appearance of sincerity and profound truth. So, we were fooled and tricked and the war continues.

Allies become enemies; foes become the coddled darlings of policy. As Richard Law says: " . . . In the stress of war we nourish the illusion that a better world is being born of suffering and sacrifice. But total war does not bring a better world. Total war brings total ruin. The devastation, physical, economic and, above all, moral, which was wrought by the war is without parallel in modern history, and it will not easily be made good."

THAT WAS WORLD WAR II with Russia as an ally. What World War III with Russia the enemy can be baffles imagination. Surely, no one in the United States craves such a war nor do sensible people agitate for it. Yet, that war is in the making and Soviet Russia is the maker, perhaps witlessly. Such a war would mean ruin for them as it would mean ruin for us and for all mankind. It would probably set the human race back a thousand years. Yet it seems to be inevitable.

But is anything inevitable? The Hegelians and Marxists suffer from the superstition of inevitability. They have reverted to the fatalism of the fore-ordained. Forces, once let loose, they assume, must meet at an inevitable point. And for them the inevitable point is where Socialism triumphs over Capitalism; where the Marxian concept of Democracy conquers the Jeffersonian concept of Democracy; where the elite, the expert, the scientist and statistician overcomes the inexpert voice of the people.

Those who believe in the inevitable cannot risk much for peace, for what will be, will be. This hopeless Nihilism of the human spirit explains nearly everything that has happened in Europe during the past two years. Why stand up for principle? Why cleave to a way of life? Why hold on to faith and tradition? The end must come.

At a moment like this, most people are reduced to clods. Hunger, persecution, fear, break down the will to hold ideals high. Hungry men fight for bread alone. Starving mothers think of starving children. The faith of a people can be stamped out for generations by the brutality of government and the assurance that hopelessness is the only goal in life.

TO AMERICANS, all this is hard to understand; yet unless we do grasp what has happened to the minds and spirits of millions of Europeans, it is impossible for us even to approximate the trends in their conduct. Why do France and Italy march so swiftly into a barbarous world? Why has even Great Britain, the mother of free institutions, taken on the characteristics of a Socialist state? Why does Christianity seem to have no power of resistance to the great darkness that is enveloping Europe?

The answer is hunger, fear and hopelessness. The answer is that men have lost the reason for striving. That is what the "unnecessary war," as Winston Churchill has so aptly christened it, has done to the civilization of Europe. A continent is committing suicide because it has become as accustomed to death as to life, because fear has replaced hope, and ideals of living have given way to the shabby business of begging for bread.

It is in this atmosphere that a new war is gestating. Day by day, it comes closer. Only forthright speaking can save us. Polite compromises mean nothing now. Hasty retreats will not help. We face grave danger. Only fools dare avoid caution.

Hollywood

By Louella O. Parsons

HOLLYWOOD, June 28—If Elyse Knox was shedding a tear or two because Mike Todd called off his movie production of "Linda Be Good," in which she was to star—she can turn on the smiles now. Mike has sold this musical to Matty Kemp for a PRC picture, but along with the deal, Todd insisted Elyse remain in the top role.

Elyse Knox

"That's mighty good-hearted," you're probably saying—and it is. But there's more to Mike's generosity than meets the eye. He has Elyse in mind for a Broadway musical this fall—and the more she is built up on the screen, the more she will be worth to his show.

"Linda Be Good" is the best chance she's had to click in a musical, although, I must add, this is not the same show in which Todd will star her in New York.

FRANCES GIFFORD, one of our prettiest girls, will sing and play the piano in "Luxury Liner," Joe Pasternak's musical, which starts in three weeks.

"It's Frances' best role to date," Joe told me, "and she is reporting for wardrobe fittings immediately."

With Frances is Jane Powell, MGM's cute little thrush, and Lauritz Melchior who can make you forget your troubles whenever he sings. I personally am glad Frances gets this chance, which she deserves. She is not only awfully pretty, but awfully, awfully nice.

CLAUDE RAINS goes to Paris with Viveca Lindfors and Dennis Morgan for "To the Victor." Warners, along with many of the other companies, think it is a very good thing now for our relationship with Europe to make a certain number of pictures abroad.

This one will be made right in Paris. The last picture Claude made abroad was "Caesar and Cleopatra," with Vivien Leigh. He received over a million dollars for that movie because it included his income tax in England. He had to pay tax in both America and England. I wonder how that tax situation will work out with a picture made by an American company?

CHARLIE EINFELD went into raves over Hazel Brooks (Mrs. Cedric Gibbons) after he looked at "Body and Soul."

"She's certainly our next big star," he said, "and I am so pleased with what she's done that I'm starring her in 'Cairo Incident.' I'd like to borrow Richard Conte from Darryl Zanuck to play opposite her."

While we were talking Charlie mentioned that he and May (Mrs. Einfeld) had just celebrated their 20th wedding anniversary. The audience probe is proving equally confusing. Once the identity of many known conservatives was established in the crowds which heard Henry, the big question was why they came—whether they actually were potential converts, or merely were magnetized by that curiosity which attracts all manner of humans to watch fires, freaks and flagpole sitters . . .

If the bosses of both parties knew that answer, they'd know more about Wallace's worth in '48—and they could call their ward-hounds off Henry's now cold, 28,000-mile trail.

But the hunt still would have been cheaper with one pack!

Midget Motor Maniacs Come Back to Boston

By AUSTEN LAKE

ANOTHER OF THOSE CUCKOO carnivals, sappadillo safaris, or daffy derbies is being held tonight at the Medford Bowl, Revere Parkway. This pertains to the fleet of midget motor cars, somewhat larger than roller skates which snort at 110 mph around the third-mile track.

The midget motor races are a depravity imported originally from the Middle West, less of a pure sport, when measured against muscular skill, than a mad, mechanized merry-go-round, in which some 25 suicide fanciers woosh, skid and spin for prize money or a quick trip to eternity. As displayed in the tuning pits tonight they are lethal toys costing an average of $4000, built by hand with the precision of a ship's chronometer, though a few are scrap iron marvels pieced together from discarded bits found in the motor graveyards. It takes months to manufacture one of these flying coffins but only a few seconds to turn it into a twisted tangle of tubes and sprockets.

The race drivers are mainly youths from the Greater Boston area, lads in their late teens or early 20's—the reckless and wreckful age. Though young in years, they are a glittery-eyed set of kids with gaunt, nerve-frazzled faces and many of them carry scars of old crackups, similar to those of the rodeo cow-hands—wry necks, gimpy legs, stiff joints and hand stitched scars.

Schindle's Wooden Leg

MOST OF THE MIDGET DRIVERS are dirt and brick bottom racers who propel bigger buses during part of the season—like Dedham's Bobby Blair, Watertown's Frank Simonetti, Lowell's Jimmy Thompson, Fall River's Al Mitcheson and Haverhill's Van deBogart, who spend their lives gypsying between carnivals, toting their lethal toys on trailers and occasionally holing up in some hospital to be sewed together again with fiddle gut.

It has been a long time since I last saw one of these wracky whirligigs which are as potentially fatal as any of the Indianapolis 500-mile crack-up clinics. For the element of risk is considered vital to customer appeal and I recall with what pride the promoters used to point to Bill Schindle, who drove his hornet scooter with a wooden leg. Bill used to say that as long as his throttle foot was okay the extra leg was only excess baggage anyway.

Yessir! The more one deals with motor racers, the more respect one has for the uses of cowardice. For fear is sometimes a signal from good sense. Timidity in its more cautious forms requires a certain measure of intelligence.

I remember Bobby Blair, a scholarly looking lunatic who tried to make mincemeat out of himself during last Saturday's races, once almost ramming his radiator into Simonetti's streamlined bustle so that the two went careening and quivering down the stretch until both drivers gave the proper directional twist to their tillers and saved themselves and part of the crowd from joining the angels.

The crowd was pretty thick at this part of the track, hanging over the fences and glaring hopefully as the motor cowboys guided their castiron mustangs over the greasy going. Only the drivers' supersense of balance and, perhaps, a dash of divine guidance, stopped them from squirting at right angles.

I think it was Van deBogart, and there's a name for you, who threw a shoe, and slewed against the guard rail like a dizzy goose. He didn't get hurt and presently sent out a repair posse to nudge his bus into the pits. You would have thought he would fall down on his knee-knuckles and thank a genial Providence for not being impaled on the roadside markers, and then promise to lead a quiet life. But no! Wednesday there he was again, driving another wasp-waisted bus litttle larger than a sardine can, in quest of eternity.

Another Looney Era in Sport

THE REVIVAL OF MIDGET motor racing comes after a long period of war depression. The last time the adult kiddie cars appeared here was at the Boston Garden where they scooted and skated amid suffocations of carbon monoxide fumes. The place wasn't big enough and there was the smoke and noise nuisance to consider. So the customers just wouldn't buy into the show and it failed as a degenerate version of the six-day bicycle depravity which used to consume so many man-hours in Boston a few years ago, when soldiers and sailors and bowlegged tailors ganged the place and strewed the floor with the kind of litter that such crowds leave, including the breakage of flasks and the never-go-home elements who stayed on through the wee hours until their wives and relatives appealed to the bureau of missing persons.

Midget motor racing has never enjoyed the popularity here that it does in the West, despite the fact that some of the best drivers among the mad mullahs come from hereabouts. But this is another of those looney eras in local sport in which a large variety of contests are enjoying a boom, including oyster-eating events and tests of strength and endurance in which one claimant bets another claimant $1500 he can pet a puppy longer and faster than any other puppy-petter in the world. Which is why the psychopathic schottische at Medford is drawing good crowds to watch the little beetle buggies go round and round while the throttle jockeys squat in their buggy seats concerned only with keeping their wheels on the ground.

Sox Rely on Culby Again To Plug Third-Base Gap

By HERB HINNEGAN

WASHINGTON, June 28—Leon Culberson was at third base for the Red Sox today when they played the third and final game of the series with the Senators, and where do we go from here, boys? Culberson is the sixth man the Sox have used at the far turn this season. The merry-go-round is a replica of '46, when the Sox opened with Ernie Andres at third and followed him with Eddie Pellagrini, Culberson, Russell, Gutteridge and Pinky Higgins.

This year the Sox opened with Pellagrini at third, followed by Frank Shofner, Johnny Pesky, Russell and Gutteridge before Culby stepped in. That happened in Friday's game with the Senators, a game Harry Dorish dropped to southpaw Mickey Haefner, 3-0. It was the fifth time in five starts the Sox lost in this city.

Gutteridge had taken over the job from Russell on June 4 in St. Louis. He hit at a .260 rate while the Sox were in the west, and his speed and hustle are such that his .260 was satisfactory. But his hitting sloughed off at Fenway, and when he didn't pick up down here he simply had to be relieved. His overall average in the 30 games he played at second (he filled in while Doerr had the flu) and third was .172, and he had batted in only four runs.

So Culby once again gets a shot at the job he held for a spell last year, a job he lost when a Joe DiMaggio drive smashed his finger in Yankee Stadium. He's not the smoothest fielder in the league, and there is much he does not know about the position; but he can throw, he can run and, most important, he can swish the bat. And the Sox are sorely in need of base hits.

Culby played right field while Same Mele was benched with a back injury a month ago and hit up in the high .300's. As he took his new duties today he was batting .306, 15 hits in 49 ABs.

He's fast enough to take over Gutteridge's lead-off spot, but it is more likely Moses, when he plays, will lead off, or mayhap Dom DiMaggio. Culberson hits the long ball Cronin likes and is better suited to No. 6 than No. 1.

Culberson has been working out at third only since Gutteridge went into a tailspin at the plate. He played only a couple of weeks at the position last year, so he's operating under a handicap from the start. But he'll outhit Gutteridge, and when a supposed powerhouse like the Sox is held to seven hits by Haefner, most of them scratches, any change is bound to be a change for the better.

Is there a Pie Traynor in the house?

Sox Desperate For Pitchers; Play A's Next

WASHINGTON, June 28—Joe Dobson talking: "My right shoulder has been giving me trouble for the past three weeks. However, it didn't affect my 'stuff,' so I forgot about it. But when I tried to blow a fast ball past Yost Thursday night, something gave. I lost my 'stuff' all at once, as you might have noticed, and you never saw me do that before. I felt wonderful the first few innings." He gave the Senators only one hit in the first four, hurt his arm in the fifth.

Dobson's injury hasn't caused him to visit Dr. Bennett at Johns Hopkins yet. Shoulder injuries don't seem to be as dangerous as those in the elbow, like Hughson's. Mayhap Dobson will be able to pitch Monday night against the Yanks in Boston. Maybe he won't. If his arm is as bad as Hughson's or Harris', the Sox are sunk. No team can lose three of its "big four" and win a pennant.

Cronin is desperate for pitchers. He can get nothing from the majors except by waivers, as he landed Galehouse. He might have gambled on southpaw Clarence Jott who went from the Browns to the Giants, but "I never even saw the guy pitch batting practice." He was going to bring Jim Wilson up from Louisville, but Wilson had a leg broken by a batted ball just as he had his skull fractured by Greenberg in '45 . . . Hughson can't straighten out his pitching arm. It has that 'V' look made popular by Fred Fitzsimmons . . . He's in a bad way . . . Williams went hitless in four trips against Haefner and dipped under .300 again. He's not in good humor. One thing: He's been at bat nine times in this series and hasn't been walked yet . . . Jones also was held hitless, ending his string at 13 games.

Pesky made three of the Sox' seven hits. One bounced over Haefner's head and over second base. The other two never left the infield. Dorish and pinch-hitter Russell made the only solid hits off the 34-year-old southpaw who now has an 8-4 lifetime record against the Sox . . . Doerr's hitting in hard luck. He's made only two hits in his last 18 AB's but could have had two instead of none against Haefner . . . Dorish pitched a better game than the box score reveals. Mele misjudged a fly ball that gave Spence a double. Williams set up a run when he booted Yost's single, giving him an extra base. Vernon got a double when DiMaggio's throw to second was wide.

Sox entrain for Philadelphia tonight. Double-header there tomorrow. They've won four of five games in Philadelphia and perhaps they can save themselves as they did in Cleveland last trip.

FINNEGAN.

Harvard Crew Picked to Win Coast Regatta

SEATTLE, June 28 (INS)—The eyes of the rowing world were focused on Seattle's Lake Washington today as 12 of the nation's top collegiate crews awaited the starter's call on a 2000-meter trail that may lead to London's 1948 Olympics.

With the exception of Navy's Poughkeepsie champions, the cream of America's eight-oared armadas were represented in this second national invitational sprint regatta over the Olympic distance.

Three crews, Harvard, Yale and UCLA, which did not row on the Hudson last week, augment nine Poughkeepsie contestants to make this the largest starting field in American collegiate rowing history.

The dozen crews will go streaking prow to prow down the sheltered lanes off Lake Washington's west shore when Referee Elmer Leader's sawed-off shotgun barks the signal at 4:30 p. m. (P. S. T.).

Finish-line judges will be put to a severe test to pick a winner from this talent-loaded field, but it is generally agreed the winner will be mighty hard to keep away from the Olympics next year.

With such a large field rowing at the spring distance, the race itself promises to be a wide-open free-for-all.

Observers hazarding a guess as to the probable winner point a wavering finger in the direction of Tom Bolles' powerful Harvard crew.

B's Call on Barrett to Check League-Leading Dodgers

By FRED HOEY

After their futile efforts against the Dodgers last night when they lost 8-5, the Braves tried to make amends this afternoon at Braves Field when once again they entertained Brooklyn which is solidly riding on top of the National League.

The Dodgers continue to hold a decided edge on the Braves as they did last year. This season's record is 6-2, against the Tribe.

Disregarding last night's setback, the Braves' record has been most attractive of late. They have won 21 and lost 12 at home, and have a 13-15 record on the road. It was a pity that they should fall down so badly before last night's crowd of 35,801.

Regardless of how these Braves-Dodgers games result, you are assured of plenty of baseball thrills as the bitter rivals battle so fiercely for the league lead. As it now stands, the Dodgers are on top and the Braves hold second place, thanks to the Phillies win over the Giants.

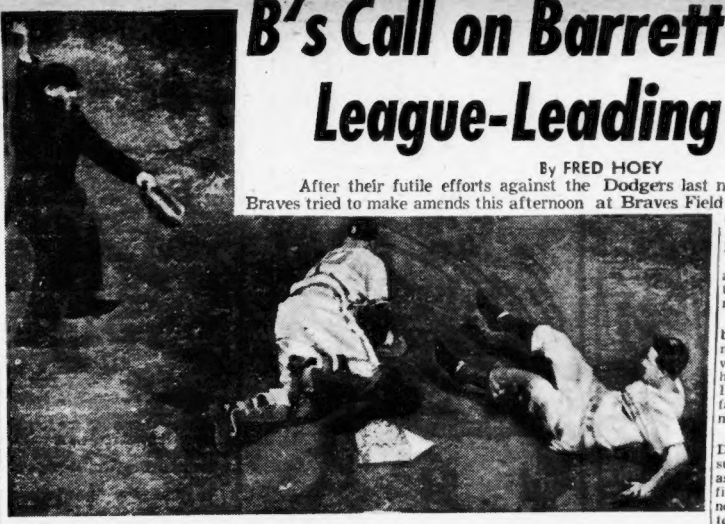
For harum-scarum baseball last night's game takes the cake. Out-hit 15 to 4, the Braves started putting on a rally that gave the big crowd a thrill. But the Tribal pitching was not holding up at any stage, and it was only a question of running out the string.

Billy Southworth trotted out Bill Voiselle, Ed Wright, Walter Lanfranconi and Andy Karl. Burt Shotton countered with Rex Barney and Hank Behrman. Barney allowed but one hit and one only two balls hit to the outfield, in five innings.

The Braves put a four-run rally in the sixth but Behrman came to Barney's aid to stop the fireworks.

There was a lot of bad baseball on both sides.

The finest play was turned in by Connie Ryan off Johnny Jorgensen in the eighth. The New Orleans boy went far to his left to grab a grounder and get the speedster at first. It was a gem of a play.



STONEWALL—Phil Masi, Braves catcher, proved too great an obstacle for Carl Furillo, Dodgers' outfielder, who tried to score from second on a single to right in the fifth inning at Braves Field last night. Furillo went head-over-heels over Masi's head and never did touch the plate. Dodgers won, 8-5.

'Copter Landing Thrills Braves' Fans

Something new was added at Braves Field prior to last night's game when a helicopter breezed into the park and landed near second base. The huge crowd enjoyed the spectacle. It was all a part of a sales promotion plan for a national weekly which featured a story of the Three Steam Shovels, owners of the Braves—Perini-Rugo-Maney . . . Hardly had the helicopter disappeared than a huge dirigible sailed majestically over the outfield.

It was gratifying to note the warm ovation the big crowd accorded Jackie Robinson when he first came to bat . . . Dixie Walker went into a tantrum in the first when Umpire Bill Stewart ruled foul a ball that must have struck the handle of Dixie's bat. It was tough on the Dodgers, for Jackie Robinson had second base stolen and continued on to third when the ball went to the backstop.

Bill Voiselle retired the Dodgers on strikes in the second. How the big fellow did burn 'em in that inning.

His kid days caught up with Lou Perini, the Braves' president, last night. Lou played ball for the Ashland team many years ago. So the Ashland Boosters Club attended last night's game and presented the genial president with a Telechron clock.

Billy Sullivan's swell Braves' bulletin contains a picture showing the depth of soil removed from Braves Field to level it. Imagine removing 1500 tons of top soil and remaking the field, all in the short space of three weeks. This was right down the alley of the Three Steam Shovels.

John Quinn announces another Brooklyn doubleheader here when the Dodgers play on September 27. It's a carryover from an early postponement. Who knows, these games might be vital in the pennant scramble.

It may be his style but Bill Voiselle appeared to be working terrifically fast early in the game. He appears to enjoy work and you can bet Billy Southworth will find plenty for Big Bill to do.

Patty Eliminates Bromwich In Wimbledon Court Upset

LONDON, June 28 (AP)—Budge Patty of Los Angeles scored the biggest upset of the Wimbledon tennis championships today by eliminating John Bromwich, second-seeded Australian veteran, 6-4, 0-6, 6-4, 1-6, 6-4, before a crowd of 15,000 on the famed center court.

The unheralded Californian landed in the quarter-finals, where he joined Jack Kramer of Los Angeles, the top-seeded favorite who reached the round of eight earlier with a 7—5, 6—2, 6—3 triumph over Torsten Johansson, Swedish Davis Cup star.

Bromwich, who had been expected to go to the singles finals against Kramer, leaped the net to congratulate Patty after their tiresome, five-set grind and then collapsed on the grass from fatigue.

Patty himself was so exhausted near the end of the match that he wandered off the court and sat in the shade beneath the referee's stand when the opportunity afforded.

In breaking through Bromwich's service in the last game of the fifth set, Patty scored three placements to lead, 40-15. The crowd, including Prime Minister Clement Attlee, was terse as the Australian served the final ball.

They volleyed briefly and then Patty delivered a difficult drop shot inside the sideline. Bromwich got his racket on the ball but it hit the net a foot below the top.

Bromwich, a stocky blond who shares honors with Dinny Pails as the best Australia has to offer, erred consistently throughout the match, which was interrupted after the first set by a 15-minute shower.

The Australian showed his disgust at not being able to return Patty's deliveries by shaking his head, clinching his fist, and finally by spanking himself with his racket.

Bromwich has an unusual style. A natural lefthander, he used a regulation southpaw forehand stroke but serves with his right and also plays from the righthand side with a double-handed smash.

Patty beat this technique in the rallies by sending three or four balls to Bromwich's left, then changing pace with cross court drives. After running after the ball with both hands on his racket, Bromwich was unable to meet these shots effectively.

Kramer, generally regarded as the world's No. 1 amateur, got a scare in the early part of his match with Johansson but rallied to beat the Swede without the loss of a set.

Johannson, member of the Swedish Davis Cup team that last year won the European zone finals, raced into the lead, three games to none, and it was the eighth game of the first set before a contest went to deuce. Then Kramer discovered he could handle the stocky Swede by hitting to the baselines and from there on in the American was in control.

In contrast to Kramer's difficulty, Doris Hart of Miami, defeated Beebee Gullbrandsson, Swedish net queen, 6—3, 6—0. Miss Gullbrandsson didn't get a point until the third game.

Jarowlav Drobny, bulwark of the Czechoslovakian Davis team, advanced to the quarterfinals when Enrique Morea of Argentina withdraw because of a sore shoulder. Drobny will meet the winner of the John Bromwich-Budge Patty match in the semifinals.

Dinny Pails of Australia won his way into the semifinals by beating Francis Robert Abdesselam, 6—2, 6—1, 6—4. The Australian, although far from his best, was too good for Abdesselam, who tired in the oppressive heat.

Army Quarterback Goes on Honeymoon

MIAMI, Fla., June 28 (AP)—Army's star quarterback, Lt. Arnold Tucker, and his "childhood sweetheart" bride, the former Patricia Small, were en route to New Orleans on their honeymoon today after their military wedding here last night.

Tucker, who called signals for Army's famous "Doc" Blanchard and Glenn Davis backfield team, was graduated from the U. S. Military Academy at West Point this spring.

He and his bride have "gone steady" since high school days.

They will make their home in San Antonio, Tex., where Tucker is assigned to the Army Air Force base at Randolph Field.

'BEANED' PLAYER IMPROVES

JAMESTOWN, N. Y., June 28 (AP)—Bobby Williams, 21-year-old shortstop for the Hornell Pirates of the Pony League, was reported slightly improved early today after suffering a critical skull fracture Thursday night in a game with Jamestown.

Boston Sandlot Test At Braves Field July 8

By JACK CONWAY, JR.

The greatest of all the Boston Record-American-Sunday Advertiser sandlot baseball tryouts, which are being held in ten New England cities, will be staged at Braves Field July 8.

Last year more than 300 boys reported to Braves Field for the tryouts. This year the figure is expected to be equally as good.

From this group eight players will be selected to represent the area in the New England championship game which will be played at Fenway Park July 29.

Billy Mullen and Bob Cusick, directors in the City of Boston recreation unit, have pledged their support to the tournament. They will work with Claude Davidson, tournament director, in conducting the trials.

Mullen is one of the foremost recreation leaders in the country. Cusick was a three sports man while attending Durfee High, Fall River.

The Boston players who are selected by the board will then be eligible to compete for the two coveted berths on the Hearst National team which will play at the Polo Grounds, New York City, Aug. 13.

There is no entry fee. Competitors must be over 15 and under 19 years of age.

Midget Autos at Medford Tonight

Following a postponement due to threatening weather Wednesday, midget auto racing will swing back into action tonight at the new Medford Bowl, Revere Beach pkwy., Medford, with another all-star 8-race card topped with a 25-lap feature event, and presenting such stars as Joe Sostillio of Natick, the popular Billy Randall of Wakefield, winner of the feature race on opening night, and the pride of Roxbury, Oscar Ridlon.

Other drivers expected to be on hand for the starting gun are Jimmy "Red" Thompson of Lowell; Van DeBogart of Haverhill, who luckily escaped serious injury last Saturday when his "V-8" crashed the guard rail, and Nick Simonetti of Watertown, a brother of the former New England champion, Frankie.

Free parking space has been provided, and the bowl is easily reached by "El" via Sullivan sq., on the Elm st. car lines. The races start at 7:45 p. m.

FAN SHOT AT GAME

ST. LOUIS, Mo., June 28 (INS)—How Kenneth Morris of East Carondelet, Ill., happened to be shot and wounded while watching a Cardinals' night baseball game intrigued St. Louis police today.

Morris, while attending the baseball game at Sportsmans Park between the Cardinals and Cincinnati last Thursday night, felt a severe pain in his right knee. He went to the emergency dressing station at the field and was treated for a minor puncture wound which he thought had been inflicted by a piece of flying glass.

His knee was badly swollen yesterday morning, however, and a doctor's examination showed a bullet lodged in the right knee joint.

Detectives were baffled today as to who could have shot him—and how it could have gone unnoticed by the rest of the thousands of spectators.

Hearst Juniors Tee off Monday At Pawtucket

Proof that golfers thrive in a golfing atmosphere is the fact that Charles and John Kent, two young sons of John Kent, pro at the Wellesley Country Club, have posted entries for the 1947 Hearst New England Junior golf championships.

The first of four N. E. rounds will be played at the Pawtucket Golf Club, Monday morning, with the first golfers teeing off at 8:30 a. m.

The Pawtucket round will be flavored with brisk competition. The boys will play medal score with the top eight qualifying for the N. E. title round at the Woodland Country Club, Newton, July 21 and 22.

The finalists at Woodland will then be sent to Los Angeles for the National finals.

Other qualifying rounds will be played at the South Shore Country Club, Hingham, July 2, Merrimack Valley Country Club, Lawrence, July 7, and the Wachusett Country Club, West Boylston, July 11.

Any boy who has not reached his 19th birthday is eligible to compete. There is no entry fee. Merely clip the coupon from today's Record or American and mail it.

Recent entries included Frank Curtin, Watertown; Earl Whitney, Sharon; Ted Newcombe and Bert Nogler, Quincy; Richard Manning, Jack McNeice and Freddie Pitts, Wollaston; Lee Gogan and Richard Eagan, Newton; Jim McDonald and Jim Grady, Robert Costello and Robert McDonald, Jamaica Plain; E. C. Sharp, Jr., Tom Cavanaugh, and John Reilly, Jr., North Scituate; and Larry Corcoran, Brookline.

Learn to Swim Classes Monday

The Hearst "Learn to Swim" campaign will be off to a fine start Monday morning at two New England locations. It is expected that more than 500 youngsters will take part in the activities during the first week.

Johnnie Temple, Humane Society instructor, will hold classes from June 30 until July 12 at the State Hospital Pool, Canton. On the same dates, Joe Baldwin, Red Cross swim mentor, will be at the Beachmont Y. C., Revere.

Both swim teachers will hold beginners classes from 10-12 in the morning and life saving classes from 2-4 in the afternoon.

5 R. I. Boxers Enter Dilboy Field Bouts

Five Rhode Island fighters have filed their entries for the amateur boxing program to be staged at Dilboy Field, Somerville, next Wednesday night.

The Quintet lists: Joe Nocci, Providence, in the 126's; Bill Sutton, Providence; Steve Marcella and Joe Narusi, Pawtucket, in the 135's; and Rocky Mello, Providence, in the light-heavyweight division.

Boxer Collapses; May Have Fracture

DETROIT, June 28 (INS)—Jose Basora, Puerto Rican middleweight, is in the hospital today as a result of injuries suffered in a ten-round bout with Tommy Yarosz last night.

Basora collapsed in Detroit's Olympia ring last night after Yarosz, a Monaca, Pa., fighter, was awarded the decision. The Puerto Rican puncher complained of a headache as he stepped from the ring.

Receiving hospital doctors reported that Basora's skull may be fractured and ordered X-rays. His condition is "fair."

There were no knockdowns in the battle but both fighters were staggered. At the finish, both Yarosz and Basora had cuts over their eyes.

30 Midget Car Drivers Duel on Franklin Oval

FRANKLIN, June 28—Thirty of the fastest midget racing car drivers in New England will appear here tonight in a seven-race program to be held at the Speedway.

Feature is a ten-lap race in which Oscar Ridlon of Roxbury, Hermie Delisle of Lowell, and Bob Blair of Dedham are favored.

The drivers will move over to Tiverton, R. I., Sunday night for another program.

Racing Commission Rule Hit by Supreme Court

TALLAHASSEE, Fla., June 28 (AP)—The Florida Supreme Court ruled today that a racing commission rule which holds a trainer responsible for the condition of his horse violates both the state and federal constitution.

The court, reversing a former opinion, set aside the 12-months' suspension of Joseph J. Paoli in connection with a racing commission finding that benzedrine had been given to a horse at Sunshine Park last February.

B'S-DODGERS PLAY BY PLAY

The league-leading Brooklyn Dodgers sent Ralph Branca (9-7) to the mound to oppose the Braves in the second of a four-game series at Braves Field this afternoon before 10,000. Charley "Red" Barrett (6-5) was the Warrior's hurling choice.

Barrett, however, was greeted by a pair of Brooklyn round trippers and was lifted in the fifth inning for a pinch hitter with Johnny Beazely assuming the mound chores for the Tribe.

Dixie Walker, veteran Flatbush outfielder, smashed one Dodger four master and third baseman Johnny Jorgeson the other.

Earl Torgeson, rookie first baseman, countered with a home run for the Braves.

Final Score: Braves 5, Dodgers 4

Culberson's Hit Puts Sox in Lead

By HERB FINNEGAN

WASHINGTON, June 28—Before Leon Culberson took over at third base for the Red Sox today against the Senators, he received a wire from Boston informing him that he had become the father of a son—already named Stephen Brandon Culberson.

The 27-year-old Georgian has two other children, Kay, who will be six in August, and Leon, Jr., who will be 2 in August. Birthday of Culby himself is in August.

Starting his first game at the far turn since early last season Culby was placed at No. 6 in the batting order, and Wally Moses elevated to the lead-off spot. Once again Cronin told DiMaggio to sit it out while Mele played centerfield.

It was drizzling at game time, but there are several thousand fans in the seats, and it looks as if the game would be played. Neither team took batting practice but the tarpaulin was lifted at 2:30 for infield practice.

While the Sox were waiting for the game to begin, busiest man in camp was trainer Win Green.

He rubbed and baked the shoulders of Mickey Harris and Joe Dobson. He encased Tex Hughson's aching elbow in hot towels and bound them with elastics. He baked DiMaggio's still sore shoulder.

He bandaged Tebbetts' injured left thumb. He bandaged Gutteridge's right shin, creased by a Christman drive in yesterday's game.

Finally, he got around to the pitcher of the day—Denny Galehouse. While he was rubbing Galehouse, Cronin made a late arrival in the clubhouse. He has been combing the woods, via telephone, for some pitching help. He called Louisville only to learn Jim Wilson was still in the hospital.

The Sox pitching is in such sorry shape that relief man Bill Zuber will pitch, with Dave Ferriss, tomorrow's doubleheader in Philadelphia.

Today's Washington pitcher was long Sid Hudson, (4-4), who twice has beaten the league-leading Yankees. The Sox were making their sixth attempt to win their first game of season here.

FIRST INNING

RED SOX—Moses flied to Lewis. Pesky walked. Williams also walked, Mele forced Williams. Christman to Priddy, Pesky going to third. Doerr walked filling the bases. Culberson singled, scoring Pesky and Mele, and Doerr went to third and Culberson second when Evans let Lewis' throw to the plate go past him. Jones popped to Christman. TWO RUNS.

SENATORS — Yost singled. Lewis flied to Mele. Vernon flied to Mele. Spence popped to Culberson. NO RUNS.

SECOND INNING

RED SOX — Partee walked. Galehouse sacrificed, Vernon to Priddy. Moses lined to Spence. Hudson tossed out Pesky. NO RUNS.

SENATORS — Grace flied to Mele. Priddy popped to Doerr. Evans fouled to Jones. NO RUNS.

THIRD INNING

RED SOX—Williams fouled to Evans. Yost threw out Mele. Doerr singled. Culberson flied to Spence. NO RUNS.

SENATORS—Christman fouled to Partee. Hudson flied to Moses. Yost doubled. Lewis flied to Mele. NO RUNS.

FOURTH INNING

RED SOX—Christman threw out Jones. Partee singled. Galehouse sacrificed, Evans to Priddy. Priddy threw out Moses. NO RUNS.

SENATORS — Vernon and Spence walked. Grace flied to Mele. Priddy hit into a double play, Pesky to Doerr to Jones. NO RUNS.
